Change in Paper Clauses.

The change made in order that the bill may more closely follow the understanding between the negotiations is known as Mann amendment No. 1. It provides that from the provinces of Canada which do not impose export restrictions wood pulp and print paper up to a value of 4 cents a pound may be imported free of duty. It is left to the Canadian Parliament to grant reciprocal concessions on those products. amendment removes the objection that Canpaper men, has the better in the agreement, A province which continues to impose an export duty on wood pulp and print paper will not be permitted to share in the con ons offered by the United States.

Considers That Proposed Agree. Iowa Senator Gives His Views ment Would Infract Republican Platform Policies.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 11.—Senator Bailey, of Danville, made public to-day a letter lyn, loudly applauded United States Senator received by him from Speaker Joseph G. Albert B. The Among those in attendance were Arthur Speaker's followers in the Senate and was introduced by George N. Robinson will put up a hard fight on the floor when the Canadian reciprocity resolution is offered next week.

Following is the text of Speaker Cannon's letter:

It is represented in Washington that you are about to consider in the State Legislature at Springfield a resolution indorsing the commercial agreement with Canada which is now pending before Congress.

That proposed agreement provides substantially for free trade between Canada and the United States in agricultural products, the farmers' finished product. It includes, in addition to wheat, barley, corn, potatoes, dairy products, eggs, poultry, etc., cattle, hogs and other animals on the hoof. Of course, free trade in these products is by itself one-sided, because we give Canada an immense market for her farm produce, both in theory and in fact, while she affords us practically no market for farm products in fact, whatever may be the theory. Of course, if there can be any advantage given us which will compensate for the burden of competition thus placed on our farmers we should be able to find it in the terms. I have not found it so far, and I note that the Canadian envoy, Mr. Fielding, explains to the mother country that while Canada is gaining a large market in the United States the United States is not to gain market enough in Canada to interfere with English trade, since few reductions are made on our products that would seek a Canadian market and these reductions are small.

I note also one conspicuous discrimination. Food animals on the hoof, such as our farmers have to sell, come into this country free of duty, but on the meats manufactured from these animals there is hevided a duty of a cent and a quarter a pound.

I was in favor of the policy of protection in 1906, but not in favor of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law. I am not one of nose who believe that the free admission of agricultural products into the United States from Canada will materially affect our farmers, but I do believe that while admitting free the things which the farmer sells we should also admit free some of the things the farmer buys. The objection I have to the present arrangement is that it does not go far enough.

"I say that now is the time to make things right between ourselves and Canada and if the friends of reciprocity will stand firm we shall win."

Senator Cummins outlined his views of the proposed reciprocity agreement, and said that he thought that the American flag would now be floating from the North Pole to the Gulf had Blaine's ideas on closer commercial relations with Canada been carried out.
